

Daniel Trujillo

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Carl Davis

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Belinda Jones

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Sandra Taylor

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low■key. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Charles Gray

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Daniel Fletcher

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Anthony Sanders

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Stacy Allen

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Daniel Lara

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Jose Erickson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Julia Sutton

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Sheri Vaughan

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Kevin Abbott

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Tony Silva

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. That balance works well for me.

Joseph Smith

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Justin Arnold

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Stacie Larsen

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

David Walton

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Cynthia Martin

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Sarah Rhodes

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Cathy Singleton

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Wendy Young

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Richard Baker

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Jessica Barnett

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

William Chung

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Jesus Jackson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Jason Marshall

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Steven Meadows

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Barbara Elliott

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Eric Weaver

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Rhonda White

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Jennifer Yu

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Ryan Hayes

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Paul Williams

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Manuel Jackson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It's a habit that's served me well.

Mark Price

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Eric Johnson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Hannah Miller

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Tonya Nguyen

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Benjamin English

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Donald Herman

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Daniel Whitaker

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Anthony Mills

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. That balance works well for me.

Rhonda Sosa

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Briana Thomas

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It's a habit that's served me well.

Mary Snyder

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Frank Martinez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Carol Miller

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Crystal Stewart

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Michael Willis

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Matthew Gonzalez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Donald Joseph

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Sheena Hunt

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Jennifer George

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Trevor Perez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Todd Garza

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Dawn Kramer

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Andrew Campos

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space.

That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Patrick Kelley

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Andrea Strong

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Joshua McCall

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Peter Sawyer

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Dalton Lopez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Peter Terry

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Chase Valentine

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. That balance works well for me.

Katherine Lin

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Gerald Wells

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Teresa McCullough

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Jennifer Fisher

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Natalie Butler

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Elijah Warner

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Caleb Houston

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Eric Ruiz

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Antonio Molina

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Kelly Bowman

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Aaron Williams

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Andrew Beck

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Heather Robinson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Jeffrey Garrison

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Kelly Nichols

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Blake Reid

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Jonathan Alvarez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Robert Hicks

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Michelle Carter

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Lauren Camacho

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It's a habit that's served me well.

Samantha Wyatt

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It's a habit that's served me well.

Elizabeth Sanders

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Natasha Hill

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Nicholas Chambers

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Stephanie Smith

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Jose Thompson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Aaron Davis

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Carrie Butler

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Jamie Willis

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. That balance works well for me.

Rick Newman

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. That balance works well for me.

Russell Rhodes

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Caitlin Martin

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

William Koch

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Jason Wood

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Kaitlin Elliott

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Amanda Little

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Lisa Ball

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Terri Duarte

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Michael Williams

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Alexander Johnson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Matthew Clark

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Donna Pineda

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Justin Wolf

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Cody Stephens

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Theresa Lopez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Elizabeth Stanley

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Isabella Rodriguez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Michelle Wilson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Michael Mitchell

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Cody Brown

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Travis Williams

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Jonathon Knight

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Brianna Rodriguez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Tiffany Huynh

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Andrew Lopez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Natalie Cox

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. That balance works well for me.

Christopher Brown

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Teresa Bowers

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Joseph Gonzalez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Melanie James

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Marvin Phillips

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Laura Thomas

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Jordan Moore

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Michelle Moore

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Michelle Stevens

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Lisa Higgins

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Melissa Robertson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Susan Phillips

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Travis Miranda

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Antonio Johnson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Richard King

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last■minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Austin Smith

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. That balance works well for me.

Margaret Wells

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Brian Walker

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Christopher Johnson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Mark Burnett

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Christopher Lyons

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Michael Richardson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Ray Jones

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Ryan Atkinson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Marissa Moon

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. That balance works well for me.

Angie Cummings

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Lisa Clark

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Elizabeth Dickerson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Cristian Thompson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Kevin Mann

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Ashley McGrath

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Valerie Chase

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Michael Wright

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Hannah Stewart

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Brianna Oconnor

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Allison Nguyen

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Tracy Peck

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Tammy Bailey

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Lori Obrien

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Michele Patel

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Willie Mendez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Matthew Sampson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Brittany Price

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Bryan Wong

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. That balance works well for me.

Phyllis Alvarado

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Robert Li

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Tammy Gillespie

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Courtney Walsh

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Colleen Pennington

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Nicholas Bowman

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. That balance works well for me.

Daniel Andrade

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Austin Wright

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Kevin Conway

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It's a habit that's served me well.

Jennifer Johnson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Andrea Williams

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.

Victoria Guzman

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Melanie Perry

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Thomas Butler

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Barbara Levy

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Cassandra Roberts

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. That balance works well for me.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Wendy Wilkins

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Ryan Hughes

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Laura Gonzalez

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It's a habit that's served me well.

Sara Joseph

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Heather Miles

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last■minute coffee or walk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

John McCormick

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: I need some alone time most days to recharge, usually an hour in the evening. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Pamela Wright

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads■up so I can plan my study schedule. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Joseph Turner

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Seth Clark

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. It's a habit that's served me well.

Tina Wilson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Kathleen Wong

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space.

That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Lisa Williamson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. That balance works well for me.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Danielle Rogers

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. That balance works well for me.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. That balance works well for me.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I'm direct but respectful, and I look for solutions that work for everyone. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: People describe me as patient and easygoing. I don't mind adapting as long as we keep shared spaces clean. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Pamela Gillespie

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I love discovering hidden spots in Madrid and trying new cuisines. Routine helps me study, but I still make space for novelty. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: Spontaneous plans are fun for me as long as they don't conflict with deadlines. I enjoy a last-minute coffee or walk. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm more reserved on weekdays; on weekends I'm happy to hang out and talk. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Michelle Murphy

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I like a little notice before plans. I can be flexible, but I'm not a big fan of sudden changes late at night. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm very structured Monday to Friday. I clean regularly and label my food so there's no confusion. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?
A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Ronald King

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?
A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?
A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?
A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?
A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?
A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?
A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?
A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?
A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?
A: I get a bit anxious during exams, but I manage it by planning ahead and keeping my space tidy. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. That balance works well for me.

Jennifer Wilson

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm very reliable with timing. If we set a cleaning rota or a bill deadline, I stick to it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I enjoy small gatherings with close friends a couple of times a month—nothing too loud. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: I try to find compromise when issues come up. I'd rather talk things through quickly and fairly. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Patricia Holland

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I prefer a steady routine during the week, but I'm happy to try new activities on weekends if someone suggests it. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I'm moderately organized—I tidy up a few times a week and keep common areas clean. That balance works well for me.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I'm usually punctual and tend to arrive a few minutes early for classes and meetings. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: I'm social and like catching up with roommates, but I respect when people need space. That balance works well for me.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: Hosting is fine if we agree on quiet hours. I'd rather keep things low-key. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I'm friendly and considerate. If someone's stressed, I'll try to help or at least give them space. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I can feel stressed if there's a lot of noise at night, so I value quiet hours during the week. That balance works well for me.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: If the day is intense, I'll take quiet time with headphones or a short walk to reset. It's a habit that's served me well.

Brenda Ortiz

Q1: Do you like trying new experiences, foods, or activities — or do you prefer routines you already enjoy?

A: I'm generally curious and open to new things. I like exploring different restaurants and neighborhoods when I have time. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q2: How do you feel about spontaneous plans or surprises?

A: I'm okay with surprises if they're small. For bigger plans, I prefer a heads-up so I can plan my study schedule. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q3: Do you like to keep your space organized and plan your day ahead, or do you go with the flow?

A: I keep my space tidy and I plan my tasks in a calendar. It helps me focus and respect shared areas. I'm flexible if we communicate ahead of time.

Q4: How punctual are you for classes or appointments?

A: I try to be on time, but if I'm running late I always message people in advance. That balance works well for me.

Q5: When you come home after a long day, do you enjoy chatting with roommates or prefer quiet time alone?

A: After a long day I enjoy a quick chat in the kitchen, then I like some quiet time to recharge. I've found this keeps my week manageable.

Q6: Would you enjoy hosting small gatherings or prefer a calm apartment?

A: I prefer a calm apartment most of the time, though I like the occasional movie night. That balance works well for me.

Q7: When conflicts arise, do you usually try to find compromise or prefer to stand your ground?

A: Communication is important to me—I'll bring things up early so they don't become big problems. It helps keep the apartment comfortable for everyone.

Q8: Would you describe yourself as easygoing and patient?

A: I stay calm in conversations and avoid drama. I appreciate the same from others. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q9: When things go wrong (like a noisy neighbor or exam stress), do you get anxious easily or stay calm?

A: I'm fairly calm under pressure. If something goes wrong, I take a short break and then sort it out. It's a habit that's served me well.

Q10: How often do you need alone time to recharge?

A: I balance social time with solitude. A couple of quiet evenings per week keeps me centered. That balance works well for me.